

GIRLS' BOARDING HOME PURCHASED

Working Women and Girls of Tulsa at Last Get a Place to Live

PROCURE TWO HOUSES

Now Being Used as Apartments, Will Be Renovated; to Accommodate 65 Girls

At last—a girls' boarding home!

Employed girls and women of Tulsa who continue to be harassed by the "high cost of board" though other living expenses have taken a Humpty Dumpty-like fall will rejoice at the glad tidings that a girls' boarding home is at last a certainty and that two adjoining houses at 26 South Cheyenne were purchased Saturday for the purpose by the Salvation Army with funds contributed in a public campaign last fall.

Consideration is About $30,000.

The consideration of Captain and Mrs. O. T. Johnson of the local citadel, Col. George Wood of the southwestern chief division and the Tulsa county advisory board, of which T. J. Hartman is chairman and Alva J. Niles vice-chairman, after a search and weighing of pros and cons, General F. W. Johnson said today, despite a number of protests, unless the treasury department should ask for its reconsideration. Such a request is not under contemplation, it was added at the treasury.

Opinions are issued by the department of justice only to the president and members of the cabinet, Mr. Johnson explained, and are not made public which is the privilege of General F. W. Johnson.

Revolution against the Khanate of the emir of Bokhara began to simmer last summer. After the emir had fled from Bokhara, taking with him eight bags of gold, but abandoning his 86 loyal wives, the new government was set up in the city of Bokhara and subsequently negotiated a treaty with the Soviet at Moscow.

Necessary building alterations, to be done by Captain Upper of the southwestern division, and furnishing will be expedited to permit early opening of the home. Commandant and Mrs. O. T. Johnson, known as their "quarters," as their residence is denominated in the Army language, temporarily and will live at the boarding home until things are running smoothly and it can be placed in full charge of special officers.

Accommodation for 65 girls.

W. H. Sanstet of St. Paul parked a Dodge roadster near Third and Boulder yesterday and when he returned an hour later the car was gone.

A. E. Johnson, manager of the Texas Company, was also stolen yesterday afternoon from its parking place, near Fourth and Main, according to reports filed at police headquarters.

Owen's Marionettes Play to Big House at High Auditorium

The miraculous story of Jack the Giant Killer and his beansstalk, the agricultural wonders of the ages, was enacted yesterday before a wide-eyed and blushing crowd of children in the high school auditorium when the Lillian Owen Marionettes from Neighborhood Playhouse, New York City, were shown afternoon and evening. The entertainment, which was the biggest event in child life in Tulsa for a long time, drew big audiences for both performances; a number of Tulsa people entertained their own little parties.

Other stories that have held children fascinated for generations were told by the tiny puppets on the miniature stage with its elaborate settings.

Accommodation for 65 girls.

About 45 girls are given sleeping and boarding accommodations in the home, according to present estimates. The two houses, each two-story, face east on a lot $6x150, affording room on the lawn for a lawn swing, tennis court or croquet grounds. If desired, the girls have an ample and downy perch where houses will be connected by a glassed-in passage yet to be built.

There are 20 rooms in the larger house. The dining room will be in its basement, which must needs be redecorated and fitted out for the purpose.

There are eight rooms in the smaller house. Its basement will be used for a laundry where the girls can wash and iron.

Need More Money.

As the funds raised for the home are not sufficient to pay the entire purchase price, requests pledges amounting to about $50,000 during the campaign will be sent out immediately. A large sum of money will also be needed to furnish the home. It has been suggested that furnishing of a room by a club or society and individual contributions of furnishings will be acceptable. The first gift of this kind being given recently by J. B. Means.

There will be a wage maximum above which employed women will not be allowed to reside in the home. The weekly charge for lodging and for breakfast and evening dinner will be about $6.50. Meals will be served family style. Every effort made to create a home-like atmosphere throughout the place.

TAX LEGISLATION AHEAD OF G.O.P.

New Congress Expected to Pass Revenue Raising Bill

WASHINGTON, March 12.—After a conference with President Harding, Representative Mondell, republican leader of the house, in outlining today the probable program of the new congress, declared revenue legislation should be considered ahead of any temporary or stop-gap tariff.

Mr. Mondell held that enactment of a temporary tariff law, along the lines of the Payne-Aldrich measure, would require much time as would be necessary to pass a permanent tariff.

He further demands relief and an emergency law, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values. He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure. The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.

Even somewhat doubtful of the wisdom of the proposal, the republican leader suggested that this be confined to a single anti-dumping provision and possibly an amendment to the present law basing rates on American rather than foreign values.

He also pointed out that such a measure might save the situation during the long congressional consideration of a permanent law.

"How to tackle the allied question of tariff and revenue is the important thing," Mr. Mondell said.

It was agreed that in certain quarters it would be better to take up some measures, for instance, the Payne-Aldrich bill, modifying a few of its provisions, such as schedules K, but continuing as it is, and pass it as a purely temporary and emergency stop-gap tariff measure.

The tax bill, the program would be to follow that with revenue legislation and then a permanent tariff bill, which might not become law until the regular session.